Cattle on parade

Cowboys, cowgirls steer animals down Lincoln Avenue on Sunday

STEAMBOAT SPRINGS

Children were being children Sunday morning as they lined Lincoln Avenue, waiting for the stars of the Saddleback Ranch cattle drive.

"See any cows yet?" a boy in a Cubs cap asked his friends, peering westward toward 13th Street. "Can we at least just get on with the cows?"

A light drizzle misted over hundreds of folks who were tucked into sweatshirts and hats against the chill. A woman struggled to cheer up a boy whose face was as cloudy as the sky.

"I'm going to turn you over and shake you until all the happy bubbles in your toes reach your head," she said, hugging him and laughing.

Parents tried all manner of tactics to amuse the youngsters as the time stretched toward 10:15 a.m. Some were teaching: "Many cows are called cattle," a mom told her son.

Others were checking out license plates of passing cars: "Montana. Do we have
