Oak Creek Sgt. Erik Foster was back on duty Monday after an incident early Saturday morning that resulted in the tasing and arrest of former Oak Creek Mayor Kathy "Cargo" Rodeman.

Oak Creek Police Chief Russ Caterinicchio said Monday that there was nothing out of the ordinary in the arrest, which resulted in Rodeman being charged with five misdemeanors, including resisting arrest and driving under the influence of alcohol.

Caterinicchio said he supported Foster's decisions during the pursuit and arrest.

"He is not suspended. He will not be suspended," Caterinicchio said. "(Foster) used great prudence and restraint."

Kris Hammond, a Steamboat Springs lawyer who is representing the three women involved in the incident, said Monday that Rodeman was still "very, very upset" and shaken by the experience.

"She's sore, she's got wounds on her leg and arm. She's very rattled about the whole thing," he said.

Hammond said he had discussed with Rodeman the idea of pressing a claim against the police department but had not decided how to proceed.

Oak Creek Town Trustee and Police Commissioner Dave Ege said there was no special meeting planned or held in response to the incident.

Mayor J. Elliot said the incident would not be reviewed unless it was brought before the Town Board, either through Caterinicchio or a citizen-submitted complaint.

"I've heard a lot of comments both ways," Elliot said. "They'll bring anything that's necessary before the board. Other than that, there's nothing at this point that I know."

Caterinicchio will lead the internal investigation into the matter, but he said he does not expect to bring it before the Town Board.

This is the first time since he
