Introduction to the Healthy Kids Colorado Survey

This report summarizes findings from the 2009-2010 Healthy Kids Colorado Survey (HKCS), which was administered in your school(s) during the 2009-2010 school year.

Background

The Healthy Kids Colorado Survey (HKCS) was developed:

- To facilitate recruitment of a representative sample for the purposes of monitoring statewide trends in school youth
- To meet the data collection and reporting needs of schools and programs receiving funding from multiple federal and state agencies

Specifically, the HCKS collects data that are commonly required by grants and programs offered through the following:

- U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention
- U.S. Substance Abuse and Mental Health Service Administration and Center for Substance Abuse Prevention, including Drug-Free Communities and SPF SIG (CPP)
- U.S. Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention programs
- Colorado Department of Education programs, including Safe and Drug Free Schools and Communities
- Programs of the Colorado Departments of Human Services (Division of Behavioral Health), Education, Public Health and Environment, Public Safety (Division of Criminal Justice and Office of Juvenile Justice) and Transportation

Survey Measures

The HKCS integrates items from: the Centers for Disease Control's Youth Risk Behavior Survey (YRBS); the Colorado Youth Survey (CYS), developed by the Social Development Research Group and coordinated by OMNI Institute; and additional items selected by Colorado state agencies. The HKCS contains a total of 142 items on the high school version and 127 items on the middle school version. As with previous surveys, the HKCS provides information on a wide range of youth attitudes and behaviors regarding substance use, violence and delinquency, mental health, and academic performance. The following are sample measures in the HKCS:

Substance Use

- Lifetime use of cigarettes
- Use of alcohol in the last 30 days
- Use of prescription drugs

Delinquency

- Weapon possession on school property in the last 30 days
- Age at first suspension

Personal Safety/Violence

- Riding in a car with a driver who has been drinking in the last 30 days
- Victim of verbal slurs

School and Family

- Support of teachers and school staff
- Support of parents at home
- Harassment or bullying on school property

Mental Health

- Prevalence of depression on most days over the last 12 months
- Importance of college and future aspirations
- Participation in organized community service activities in the last 30 days

Physical Health

- Average hours of television on school day
- Number of days with 20 minutes of exercise in the last 7 days
- Use of extreme weight loss methods in the past 30 days

Sexual Behavior (This section only appears in the High School survey)

- Prevalence of abstinence and sexual activity
- Use of effective birth control methods

Risk and Protective Factors

Select measures of ‘risk and protective factors’ based on Hawkins and Catalano’s risk and protective factor framework are also included. Risk and protective factors are characteristics demonstrated by research to increase or decrease, respectively, the likelihood of substance use, delinquency, and other problem behaviors. Risk and protective factors measured in the HKCS are displayed below. Risk and protective factors are reported using statistically validated ‘cut-off points’ that identify the percentage of youth in your community who exhibit significant levels of a risk factor, or who exhibit significant levels of a protective factor. Thus, when examining the results for risk and protective factors, keep in mind that higher numbers for risk factors represent elevated risk whereas higher numbers for protective factors represent greater protection. School and community programs that reduce risk factors and enhance protective factors have been shown to positively impact the future health behavior outcomes of youth. The following are the risk and protective factors in the HKCS:

Risk Factors (Domain: Scale)

- Peer-Individual: Peer Use of ATOD
- Peer-Individual: Low Perceived Risk of Drug Use
- Peer-Individual: Attitudes Favorable to Drug Use
- Peer-Individual: Early Initiation of Antisocial Behavior
- Family: Parental Attitudes Favorable To Drug Use
- Family: Parental Attitudes Favorable To Antisocial Behavior
- School: Low Commitment

Protective Factors (Domain: Scale)

- School: Opportunities for Pro-Social Involvement
- School: Rewards for Pro-Social Involvement

School Administration and Resources

The survey is administered by participating schools during the regular school year and generally requires 45 minutes for students to complete. In order to promote a smooth administration and good data quality, schools work closely with OMNI Institute to plan their school survey administration. OMNI Institute is the agency that coordinates the statewide administration of the HKCS.

To support Colorado’s school survey effort, OMNI Institute provides the following services:

- Monitoring common state and federal data reporting requirements of schools and programs
- Assisting school officials in planning school survey administrations
- Supplying school survey materials
- Scanning and analyzing school survey data
- Developing user friendly reports of HKCS data
- Assisting school officials and local coalition representatives in interpreting HKCS data for funders and stakeholders
- Assisting school officials and local coalition representatives in utilizing data for local program and service planning

To plan next year’s school administration, or for more information regarding available technical support, please contact the survey team at OMNI Institute at survey@omni.org or 1-800-279-2070 ext. 101.

Report Organization

Your school survey report is organized into several major health behavior topics. In each topic area, a few select survey items have been charted to illustrate overall health behavior and attitudes in the participating sample and differences between grade levels. Then complete survey results related to the health topic have been presented in table format.

Risk and protective factors are reported in a separate section at the end of the report. This organization reflects the idea that risk and protective factors work collectively to induce or inhibit problem behaviors in the areas of substance use, delinquency and other problem behaviors.

Consider where school youth measured highest in terms of the risk factors measured and lowest in terms of the protective factors measured. These may be important leverage points for improving overall health behaviors in youth.

NOTE: Confidentiality

When fewer than five students report a behavior or attitude, these responses are reported as “Conf.” for “confidential” in the data tables and as zero in bar charts. This standard policy protects the confidentiality of students taking the survey, so that no responses can be associated with an individual youth. There are times, however, when student responses are reported as “Conf.” at the grade level but are totaled in “All” grades. This will occur when the number across grades totals a number equal to or greater than five, and confidentiality does not need to be protected. Variation may exist between the numbers reported for individual grades and the “All” grades totals, look in the data table and you should find “Conf.” reported at one or more grade levels. “Conf.” signifies that the numbers were too few to count at the grade level, but could be counted as part of the larger “All” number.

NOTE: Honesty and Data Validity

Sometimes students do not pay adequate attention or do not respond honestly to survey questions. Certain techniques are used to determine when survey responses are inconsistent or dishonest. For example, a student who indicates on one question that he or she has never used tobacco, but on another question reports having smoked 10 cigarettes in the last 30 days, the answer will be considered to be inconsistent for that ‘domain’ of substance use. Students whose responses were inconsistent within each ‘domain’ of substance use (e.g., tobacco use, alcohol use) were considered ‘missing’ and not included in calculations of use for that specific substance. This procedure allowed us to take into account students who inadvertently responded incorrectly to questions, but were not deliberately dishonest throughout the survey. Students whose responses were inconsistent across three or more domains were considered ‘dishonest’ and were removed entirely from the sample. These multiple steps were undertaken to ensure that the information presented in your report is as accurate a reflection of self-reported youth behavior as possible. (Note: This is not the only source of missing data. Data also may be coded as missing if a student does not provide either their age or grade.)

All surveys strive for a high overall response rate. High response rates help to lower sampling errors. However, even if overall response rates are high, the possibility remains that some students who took the survey may not have responded to every question. The extent of missing data can influence these decisions, the interpretation of the results, and the strength of the confidence in the interpretations. Therefore, for each survey item, specific information on the item specific response rate is provided. For each survey question, information on the item response rate is indicated as either above or below 60%. If the item response rate is above 60%, the student representation on that item can be more confidently interpreted as representative of the overall student respondents. If the item response rate is lower than 60%, the data should not be disregarded, but some considerations should be addressed in regards to the representativeness of the data. While no single response rate is considered the standard, the most important consideration, overall, is how representative the sample of students that respond to each question is of the entire population.

NOTE: Use of ATOD and Drug Use

Please note that ATOD and drug use are often used interchangeably throughout this report. ATOD refers to the use of alcohol, tobacco and other drugs. When “drug use” is used, this may also encompass the use of alcohol and other drugs, as may be the case when we are utilizing a name of a risk factor.

How to Use This Report

Guidelines for Using the 2009-2010 CPP Aggregate HKCS Report

OMNI Institute has compiled the 2009-2010 CPP community-level HKCS data into one aggregate report. Please be advised that there are considerations to keep in mind when using these data. The following guidelines are intended to help you use the Aggregate CPP data effectively and appropriately.

What is the CPP Aggregate HKCS Report?

The data provided in the 2009-2010 CPP Aggregate HKCS Report are the combination of responses of all youth who participated in HKCS in CPP-funded communities in the 2009-2010 school year. The results simply provide a snapshot of youth behaviors in CPP-funded communities among those youth who responded to the HKCS survey.

How Can I Use the CPP Aggregate Data?

OMNI advises that you use the CPP Aggregate data as a “backdrop” to your data, rather than using it to make evaluative judgments of how your community is doing in comparison to other CPP communities (or vice-versa). It is important to remember that CPP communities may vary dramatically in their geographic location, demographic composition, local culture, and prevalence of health behaviors, risks and protective factors.

The data included in this Aggregate report are not representative of all the middle and high school youth enrolled in schools in CPP communities across the state or of all “Colorado youth.” A relatively high percentage of the responses included in this report come from a handful of the larger CPP communities, meaning that the data in this report may be heavily influenced by just a few communities. Larger communities are thus over-represented in this report, whereas smaller communities are under-represented. In addition, CPP communities were chosen because of their high rates of risk and high need. Therefore, it is likely that the rates reflected in this aggregate data report are higher than what might be expected from a representative sample of all students in Colorado. Given these considerations, think of the CPP Aggregate data in terms of adding a broader context for looking at your community’s HKCS data rather than as a point of direct comparison or as a way to make evaluative judgments.

What Are Some Other Sources of Comparison Data?

You may wish to obtain other sources of comparison data as a way to gain a better understanding of the relative needs, strengths, and challenges for youth in your community.

This table illustrates two important concepts:

1) The Demographic composition of the students from your school(s) who took the survey.

Example: If the number (N) of female respondents is 200 and there are 400 respondents in the total sample, then 50% of the total sample is female.

2) How each Demographic group that took the survey compares to the number of students in that group that are enrolled in your school(s).

Example: If the number (N) of female respondents is 200 and there are 800 females enrolled in the school, then 25% of enrolled females took the survey.

This second concept can be used to judge the quality of your data (e.g., how well it represents the school population). For example, if your school attempted to conduct a full census, you would want N/Enrollment for each demographic group to be close to 100% in order to accurately reflect that demographic group. Further, for your data to be representative of the school(s) as a whole, N/Enrollment percentages should all be approximately equal, regardless of sampling strategy (census or random sample); otherwise certain demographic groups are over- or under-represented in the sample.

APPENDIX A FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Who took the HKC Survey?

The HKC Survey was administered to middle and high school students throughout Colorado who chose to participate. The survey was offered to students in English and in Spanish.

How was the survey administered?

In most cases, the survey was administered by classroom teachers during regular class periods on a specified day during the 2009-2010 school year. A contact person from each school worked with the survey coordinators at OMNI to ensure that the survey reached as many eligible students as possible.

Did the students have to participate?

No. Participation in the HKC Survey is always voluntary. Parents were notified of the survey ahead of time, and they were given the opportunity to refuse their student's participation by sending back a refusal form. Students were also informed of their right to refuse. Teachers were provided with materials to ensure that students' participation in the survey was voluntary and that all responses were anonymous and confidential. In addition, students were reminded that they could skip any question(s) they did not wish to answer, and that they could stop at any time.

Are these data representative of our student population?

The more students who participate from a certain grade, school, or district, the more representative the data will be of the population in that grade, school, or district. When the response rate is 60% or greater, one can be very confident that the data reflect the experiences of the population being assessed. As response rates decline, one can be less confident that they accurately represent the experiences of the student population.

How do we know the students were honest?

Research on student self-report of substance use and antisocial behavior indicates that students tend to be honest about their behavior and experience on anonymous surveys such as the HKC Survey. Furthermore, strategies were built into the analysis of this survey to screen for dishonest or inconsistent responses. If a student's data did not meet the criteria for honesty or consistency, it was not included in the analyses.

How were the survey questions selected?

The survey questions have been derived from extensive research over the past 20 years in the field of prevention science and related fields. They have been tested on large diverse samples of youth to ensure that they accurately and consistently measure each behavior or factor.

APPENDIX C MODEL PROGRAM RESOURCES

Blueprints for Violence Prevention

The Center for the Study and Prevention of Violence at the University of Colorado at Boulder, with support from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and OJJDP, designed and launched a national violence prevention initiative to identify violence prevention programs that are effective. The project has identified 11 model programs that meet a strict scientific standard of program effectiveness. Another 18 programs have been identified as promising. These interventions have been summarized in a series of "blueprints" that describe their theoretical rationales, core components, evaluation designs and results, and practical implementation experiences across multiple sites.

Center for Substance Abuse Prevention (CSAP)

This site provides links to various evidence based and promising programs.

Center for the Application of Prevention Technologies (CSAP)'s Northeast CAPT's Database of Effective Prevention Programs

CSAP's Northeast CAPT has created an online, searchable database of effective prevention programs approved by a variety of federal and research agencies. The database allows visitors to compare selection criteria across agencies, review information about the sources those agencies used for their evaluations, and find contact information and descriptions of each intervention.

Center for the Application of Prevention Technologies (CSAP)'s Western CAPT's Best and Promising Practices

This searchable database includes practices that have been shown to be effective in preventing substance abuse and/or the risk factors for substance abuse. Information is provided regarding training, technical assistance and/or materials that facilitate replication of each practice.

Evidence-based Practices in Suicide Prevention Program

The Suicide Prevention Resource Center and The American Foundation for Suicide Prevention have developed an online registry of evidence-based suicide prevention programs. The online registry of fact sheets lists programs by title, intervention type and rating (effective and promising).

Exemplary and Promising Safe, Disciplined and Drug-Free Schools Programs 2001 Safe, Disciplined and Drug-Free Schools Expert Panel

U.S. Department of Education

The U.S. Department of Education's Safe and Drug-Free Schools Program has used an expert panel process to identify programs that should be promoted nationally as promising or exemplary. A 15-member Expert Panel oversaw a valid and reliable process for identifying effective school-based programs that promote healthy students and safe, disciplined, and drug-free schools. Using this process, the panel identified 9 exemplary and 33 promising programs.

The OJJDP Model Programs Guide is a user-friendly, online portal to scientifically tested and proven programs that address a range of issues across the juvenile justice spectrum. Developed as a tool to support the Title V Community Prevention Grants Program, the Guide has been recently expanded. The Guide now profiles more than 175 prevention and intervention programs and helps communities identify those that best suit their needs. Users can search the Guide's database by program category, target population, risk and protective factors, effectiveness rating, and other parameters. Juvenile justice practitioners are encouraged to take advantage of this helpful resource.

RISK AND PROTECTIVE FACTOR SCALE DESCRIPTIONS

School Domain
Protective Factors
Opportunities for Pro-Social Involvement	When young people are given more opportunities to participate meaningfully in important activities at school, they are less likely to engage in drug use and other negative outcomes.
Rewards for Pro-Social Involvement	When young people are recognized and rewarded for their contributions at school, they are less likely to be involved in substance use and other negative outcomes.
Risk Factors
Low Commitment	Surveys of high school seniors have shown that the use of hallucinogens, cocaine, heroin, stimulants, and sedatives or non-medically prescribed tranquilizers is significantly lower among students who expect to attend college than among those who do not. Factors such as liking school, spending time on homework, and perceiving the coursework as relevant are also negatively related to drug use.
Family Domain
Risk Factors
Parental Attitudes Favorable to Drug Use and Antisocial Behavior	In families where parents use illegal drugs, are heavy users of alcohol, or are tolerant of children's use, children are more likely to become drug abusers during adolescence. The risk is further increased if parents involve children in their own drug (or alcohol) using behavior, for example, asking the child to light the parent's cigarette or get a beer from the refrigerator.

Peer-Individual
Risk Factors
Peer Use of ATOD	Young people who associate with peers who engage in alcohol, tobacco or other drugs are much more likely to engage in the same behavior. Peer drug use has consistently been found to be among the strongest predictors of substance use among youth. Even when young people come from well-managed families and do not experience other risk factors, spending time with friends who use drugs greatly increased the risk of that problem developing.
Low Perceived Risk of Drug Use	Young people who do not perceive drug use to be risky are far more likely to engage in drug use.
Attitudes Favorable to Drug Use	Initiation of use of any substance is preceded by values favorable to its use. During elementary school years, most children express anti-drug, anti-crime, and pro-social attitudes and have difficulty imagining why people use drugs; their attitudes often shift toward greater acceptance of these behaviors. Youth who express positive attitudes toward drug use are at higher risk for subsequent drug use.
Early Initiation of Antisocial Behavior	Research shows that the early incidence of anti-social behavior also predicts greater involvement in substance use and abuse.
